

The background of the slide is a photograph of a classical building's exterior. It features several large, fluted columns made of light-colored stone. In the foreground, there are wide, shallow steps made of the same stone, leading up towards the columns. The lighting is bright, casting soft shadows.

INTRODUCTION

Job evaluation is a basic building block of the Wyoming Judicial Branch (Branch) classification structure because it provides a systematic tool for analyzing the content of a job and grouping it into a classification with other jobs of similar job content. It is also a means by which to establish the relativity of one classification to another. Job evaluation begins with a description of the duties and responsibilities of a given position to measure its relative value. To ensure objectivity, the focus of job evaluation is the nature and requirements of the job itself, not the person performing the job. The evaluation is based on the job's requirements assuming that job standards are fully met.

To evaluate our jobs, we use the Hay Method of Job Evaluation, which is the most widely used job evaluation system in the world. This evaluation method measures each job's requirements against the three key job content factors found in every job -- Know-How, Problem Solving, and Accountability.

- Know-How: The sum of every kind of skill, however acquired, required for fully competent job performance.
- Problem Solving: The original, self-starting thinking required by the job to identify, define, and resolve problems.
- Accountability: The measured effect of the job on end results.

Job duties are measured using the factors above and points are assigned based on various components within each of these factors. The total of all points then determines the appropriate pay grade (e.g., L, M, N, O, R, S) for the position.

The Branch assigns positions to a classification based on the job evaluation.

- Class families are jobs that consist of similar work.
- Grade is the range of points for a specific level of responsibility and job content. A class family will have multiple grades for varying levels of responsibility.
- Pay ranges for each grade are assigned based on the market pay ranges used by the State of Wyoming Executive Branch. The pay range displayed in this document denotes the minimum to market pay range. The maximum pay for each pay range is 20% above market.
- Annual salaries are designated for full-time employees. Part-time employees are paid a percentage of this rate based on the percentage of full-time employment (i.e. a 20-hour per week employee works 50% of full-time making the pay rate 50% of the annual rate).

There may be some positions for which the market is paying a premium over others in the same job grade or with additional temporary duties which may receive additional compensation. These positions are denoted with an asterisk (*).
